

The Chic New Princess Silhouettes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SO FAR as the silhouette of the autumn and winter frock, coat or ensemble, is concerned, anything in the way of startling innovations is apt to happen these days, in fact is happening. The whole scheme of things is changing. For one thing it is back to short wide-at-hemline skirts that current fashion has dared to go—fourteen inches from the floor if you care to follow the extreme. The present wide swing hemlines are indeed a radical departure from the sleek sheath skirts of post-season vogue. Take note of the word "swing," if you please, for it is a word that is a big word in connection with the newer fashions. Your costume to be chic must have "it" (meaning swing) and it is the new wide-at-hemline skirts that are giving exactly the style-right swing in demand.

To recount further the changing moods of the mode, comes now into the style picture high-waist, square-neck, puff-sleeve directoire trends, also quaint Victorian fashions, also Spanish themes, likewise picturesque Tyrolean costumes and that which is perhaps making the greatest impression of all—the very charming new princess "lines."

The princess influence is as everywhere present in daytime clothes as it is in formal evening clothes. From the formal evening angle the message is of regal black velvet gowns cut exquisitely a la princess, the long unbelted lines of classic simplicity sweeping out into expansive hemlines. The very beautiful moire silks so favored for dinner and dance gowns yield gloriously to princess styling, as do also the fashionable metal cloths and brocades.

With all due recognition of the importance of the princess silhouette in the evening mode, it is in the daytime fashions that the most exciting events are taking place. The youthful, flattery little princess gowns tailored of swanky wool weaves, preferably broadcloth, duveline or suede cloth are fashion "firsts" for day wear. The majority of them button down the front from neckline to hemline and they are enlivened with dramatic touches of color—perhaps a banding at the throat and on the sleeves and about the wide hemline of braid in the now-so-much-talked-of coronation colors or in the vivid Tyrolean reds, greens, blues and yellows.

As to the new coats styled along princess lines, you will agree that the accompanying illustration conveys the message more eloquently than words. The models pictured also exploit the use of Persian lamb in ways that are most attractive. The coat to the right goes extreme in the matter of the new princess lines. It is made of beige broadcloth. The buttons and young-looking collar of Persian lamb are typical of the manner in which designers are handling supple and thin fabric-like furs. Developed either in gray or beige there is no smarter coat to be found in all fashiondom. The "swing" model to the left of black broadcloth is just the gentle type that makes best dressed women look better dressed. As we all know by this time the all-black costume leads the style parade. Note the banding all about the edges of Persian lamb that is a favorite fur treatment this season. To complete the costume—ideal the hat must have a touch (if not all fur) of Persian lamb to match the trimmings.

Furs to Play Outstanding Role in Winter Fashions

With greater fur styling in evidence than ever before reports from Paris indicate that furs will play a part of prime importance in fall and winter fashions as luxurious trimming on suits, as coats, capes and accessories.

Swaggers are still leading in style with coats getting shorter and collars smaller. Sleeves feature the military Schiaparelli shoulder as well as the puffed effect which is used varyingly on the top of the sleeve, the elbow or the wrist. Contrasting treatment of skins, and unusual pocket applications are outstanding among the details in the styling.

One of the most significant notes of the season is the return of squirrel as one of the prime favorites among popular priced furs.

FLASHES FROM PARIS

High colors are high fashion. Lace mantillas are worn in the evening.

Velvet in morning glory colors trims felt hats.

Gloves of silver tissue set off evening costumes.

Elaborate negligees look almost like evening gowns.

Dark colors in velvet or satin are in mode for evening.

Soft high curls in directoire manner bespeak new hairdress.

Daytime Dresses. Daytime dresses frequently are in two different kinds of material—wool combined with satin, striped silk or with velvet. The most important part of the day dresses are the broadened shoulders and sleeves which are full from the elbow to the shoulder.

KNITTED FASHIONS ATTAIN NEW MARK

Beauty, Novelty and Styling Important Features.

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

The element of style and of novelty and of ultra-attractiveness increasingly manifests itself in knitted apparel. Perfectly marvelous showings of things knitted have gained the plaudits of an admiring world these last several seasons and the displays for fall and winter excel them all. The Tyrolean sweaters and the ski jackets embroidered in gay yarn bowers and other motifs are simply irresistible. Then too there are such interesting outifts as the knitted suit with medieval trimmings and trappings fashioned of old coin silver forming decorative buttons, hooks and clasps. With it is worn a metal mesh jumper knitted of steel—metal thread. A most outstanding costume tuned to smart town wear.

It is possible to get the most gorgeous knitted blouses in suits and two-piece dresses or stripes if one prefers. For evening handsome coats are shown in best shops that declare a definite return to the late Victorian fashion for formal wraps in elaborately knitted or crochet lace. As to the knitted cotton lace blouses, women who know are ordering them most enthusiastically. They are as neatly fashioned as if of linen. Which all goes to show the high-style importance of knitted things in the modern wardrobe.

ANKLE LENGTH
By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A new departure for the girl of eight to twelve is the ankle-length frock in demure styles which make her look like a Gainsborough portrait. Of course there is nothing equal to sheer silks such as museline de sole for the fashioning of these picturesque gowns unless it would be crisp and colorful silk taffetas. Girls adore these ankle-length dresses because they make them feel grown up, and mothers like them because of their pleasurable quality. Dresses of this type have demure round or square neckline, very high waistlines, and soft puffed sleeves. The little girl in the picture is wearing a dainty frock in the new ankle-length of pale blue silk mouseline trimmed with bands of flowered baby ribbon.
